Excerpt: .fortify it and render it invincible, but, where, as in our coun try, the slave is of a different race, marked and set apart by his color, it elevates the character not only of the master, the actual owner of slaves, but of all who wear the color of the freeman. With us, color not money marks the class: black is the badge of slavery; white the color of the freeman: and the white man, however poor, whatever be his occupation, feels himself a sovereign. Though his estate be but an empty title, he will not disgrace his station by stooping for money s sake to become the slave of another: he will treat with others as his equals, exchange his labor for their money, not honored by their service, but reciprocating the favor of equal to equal. His class respects him, with the jealousy...
