RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 22 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : U. S. Government Accountability Office, 2006 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)77463157 Subject: Postwar reconstruction -- Iraq -- Costs -- Auditing. Excerpt: . . . To address the questioned costs identified in the task orders for the oil mission, the DOD contracting official convened a meeting to include the contractor representatives, DCAA officials, and Army Corps of Engineers officials. As a result of discussions in this meeting, a DCAA official told us that DCAA stopped questioning some costs such as the percentage paid to contractor employees for working in a dangerous area and price adjustments the contractor paid to its subcontractors for fuel from Turkey. In addition, the DOD contracting official asked DCAA to provide alternative negotiation positions, and in response DCAA developed memorandums outlining several options for each task order. Ultimately the DOD contracting official used a negotiation position presented in each memorandum to establish the governments negotiation position with the contractor. When asked if he was satisfied with the resolution of the questioned costs, a DCAA official involved in the process told us he thought the DOD contracting official did the best job he could. In another example, DCAA attended negotiations between the contractor and the government for an electricity contract. DCAAs role at this meeting was to answer questions and to reiterate its opinion. Subsequent to negotiations, DCAA participated in additional meetings with the contractor and the Army Corps of Engineers to ensure that its concerns with the contractor purchasing system were addressed. DCAA officials told us that problems with the contractor purchasing system were related to the unsupported costs identified in the audit. DCAA officials involved in this process told us that they were generally satisfied with the actions...
